Frank Delaney Remanded For Trial

No Defence Evidence Advanced at Preliminary Hearing

The hearing of the case against Frank Delaney, an employee of the Attorney-General's department in the capacity of "spotter," who is charged with having held up the clerk and robbed the Cosmopolitan hotel on the evening of Thanksgiving Day, occupied the local court all day of Tuesday.

Messrs. J. E. Gillis and L. H. Putnam, of Blairmore, appeared as counsel for the prosecution, while Mr. H. Ostland, of Lethbridge, undertook to defend the accused.

The first witness called was Charles Claridge, clerk at the Cosmopolitan hotel, who stated that at about 2 o'clock on the afternoon of Monday, the 18th, Delaney and Booker engaged and paid for room 15 at the hotel. After supper Booker informed the clerk that as they were going out of town they would not require the room, whereupon he (Claridge) refunded to Booker the $3.00, not thinking at the time of ascertaining the condition of the room. Later Claridge went to the room and discovered that towels and dishes had been used and that the bed covers and pillows were ruffled and soiled and that cigarette butts and matches were left in the earthen slop bowl. He returned to the office and on seeing Booker, explained the rules of the house and the condition of the room and asked for the three dollars. Booker again paid the three dollars, and proceeded out to the street. Almost immediately afterwards, Claridge was aroused by a loud "What in h— are you pulling off here!" and on looking up noticed Delaney advancing towards him with a drawn gun flashing towards his face. He said he wanted the room or the money back. Witness told Delaney that he was sorry but the room had been re-assigned and that if he wanted something more definite he would have to see the proprietor. "I'll have that money or I'll fill you with lead!" was the next remark from Delaney. Delaney then deliberately walked in around the desk to the office, covering Claridge with the gun, the while, tried to open the cash register, but failed. Fearing that Delaney might damage the register in his efforts to manipulate it, Claridge decided to open it and lodged three dollars from the register on the edge of the till. Delaney took the three dollars, but made no attempt to interfere with other money in the tills, then continuing the use of foul language backed out of the office, his last remark being "I'll show you h— who is running the Pass! Be a man!" When asked as to whether he had called accused a spotter or any other bad name, Claridge replied: "Absolutely No."

Neither did he have any dispute with accused over a board bill. Other witnesses examined for the prosecution were Theodore Mutz, day clerk at the hotel; H. E. Beattie, of Bow Island, government roads superintendent; Charles Chestnut, mine manager; Harry Carpenter, commercial traveller; P. N. Potapoff, manager of Cowley Doukhobor community; James McCool, lumber merchant; Ross Snyder, plumbing contractor; James H. Farmer, postmaster, and W. R. Frim, commercial traveller, the evidence of all of whom corroborated the statement of Claridge.

At 4 p. m. the case for the prosecution concluded, and as the defence had no witnesses to call, opposing lawyers were given an opportunity to sum up the case.

Mr. Gillis verbally presented to the court the salient features of the case. He referred briefly to the peculiar position he and his associate solicitor were placed in, as the accused was peace officer sent by the attorney-general's department to "clean up the Pass." This, Mr. Gillis said, accused proceeded to do at the point of a gun. He averred that it had gone abroad that this was a conspiracy against the enforcement of law and order, but he claimed that if there was a conspiracy it was on the part of Delaney and his associates. Instead of upholding the accused in his crime, Mr. Gillis argued that Delaney's superiors should reprimand him. He complimented Inspector Hesketh, who had worked faithfully and consistently for some years in the Pass, never resorting to breaking the law in an effort to enforce it. According to the evidence, Delaney was a robber, pure and simple, and the offence was punishable by life imprisonment and probably whipping. He appealed to the court that the accused be committed for trial and placed under heavy bail, if any. He did not overlook the opportunity to take a rap at the daily press of the province in their attitude towards the towns of the Crow's Nest Pass. In his opinion, the Pass was as clear of crime as any other similarly populated district in the Province. He asked that a suggestion be made by the magistrate in regards to this stigma which had been unfairly attached to the Pass. The daily press, he declared, should stick to the truth and not rush into print with every sensational story they heard.

Mr. Ostland made a very able plea for his client and asked that rather than be committed he be remanded with a reasonable bail. He submitted his points, arguing that Delaney had no intention of perpetrating a general hold-up, but rather wanted his rights. He eloquently touched upon the services both the accused and Claridge had rendered their country in the great war, painting a vivid picture of the ordeal through which each had passed.

Mr. Putnam made vigorous reply to the defence solicitor, bringing forward precedents to establish the consistency of their position in demanding committal or heavy bail to guarantee the appearance of accused when required.

Justice Gresham, after summing up the case, remanded Delaney to appear at the next criminal sittings to be held in the town of Macleod, and bail was set at $3,000, two sureties of one thousand each, and his own recognizance of $1,000. Bail was immediately forthcoming.

A Source of Knowledge

The story is told of an argument that ensued between a little Roman Catholic boy and a Jew boy as to the merits of their respective churches. One word led to another until the C. C. boy said, "Our priest knows more than your rabbi does, anyway." To which the Jew boy retorted, "Well, why shouldn't he? You tell him everything!"

He picked up the cat and smothered her crumpled fur with his big hand. "That was night on to forty years ago," he said, "and I've been wandering about the bush ever since, excepting a few years I was down in the Southern States, ranchin' it. I picked up a lot down there, but nothin' worth keepin', guv'nor. What I was goin' to say was, I never see a mother and her boy together without a big somethin' I can't name straight right out between me and that somethin' is what I've missed by not havin' a mother."

Widow Ross laid her pipe on the table. "Tommy," she commanded, "you go right down to the spring and bring up that bucket of milk, and don't you spill it, or I'll pull every one of them red hairs out of your head. I don't suppose you've lost your appetite none lately, Bill?"

"Periodically only, marm. I ain't got over my likin' for brick-baked bread and milk, particularly the bread of a lady I know to be the best cook on Totherside."

Mrs. Ross showed two rows of white teeth in a pleased smile. Then her face grew stern again.

"Totherside," she flashed, "why I don't take that as much of a compliment, Bill. Evidently I'm the only woman on Totherside!"

"Beginn' your pardon, I mean on the whole country-side. But let me included," retrieved Bill gallantly.

"What he you all goin' to do about Hainbun?" asked old Tom, sitting down at the spinning wheel.

Bill shook his long hair and chuckled. "I got scolded once for sayin' what I thought about squ'aw's timber, so don't ask me."

The widow's heavy brows met in a frown. "Here you are forty years old, and that's old enough for you to have some sense if you're goin' to have any. And I must say I don't think you nor Big McTavish nor any of you Bushwhackers have an ounce of sense among you. Here you are fightin' for a fortune, or at least keepin' in money, which you might have, out of your pockets. Bosh! I believe that boy McTavish has got you all under a spell."

"Boy is sure the strongest and bitterest scold amongst us," agreed Bill, "but we're all of one opinion. We like the woods, and I guess we have reason to like 'em, for we've got a mighty good livin', and somehow wood-life has somethin' about it that cheers the land all it got—sun, air, and sounds and silence and I'll be—"

"Be careful now, you night owls again," admonished the woman. "There you, Tom, set the pot down on the table; then go to the outhouse and bring in the bread, the brick-baked loaf."

"Mrs. Ross," said Paisley, "you're not only a good-looking woman, but you're a good-hearted woman. Once I hoped I might be your son-in-law and have all the brick-baked bread I wanted, and the corn-cake which only you can bake. But Mary Ann seems to think different and I'm thinkin', after all, she's got more reason, seem' she's it only somethin' about twenty-two years old and me nearly twice that."

The widow put her finger on her hip and glanced fearfully toward the door. Then she looked with commiseration at Paisley and approached him in a crouching attitude, whispering:

"Mary Ann is goin' to marry the teacher."

Bill's stool, poised on two legs, came to the floor with a thump.

"Mary the teacher!" he repeated. "Marry the teacher! Well now, I'll be turkey-trapped. I didn't think he was brave enough to ask her."

"I ain't sayin' that he has asked her, am I?" cried the widow. "But I've got two eyes to see with, haven't I, Bill Paisley?"

"Ay, marm, to do whatever you like with," answered Bill pleasantly, his own eyes on the loaf of bread.

Simple Way to Get "Pop" To Be Put Right On Your Feet.

When a man has lost ambition to "dig in" and stay at things—when the complaint of headache, fullness in the right side, pain in the shoulder-blade—it's purely a case of "Liver."

Handling Soil

Depth of Furrow Should be Changed Each Year.

It has been abundantly proved that it is not good to plough a field the same depth from year to year. By ploughing shallow or at a uniform depth, the soil cannot become mixed well and a hard bed is formed at the bottom of the furrow, which neither air, water, nor the roots of plants will penetrate readily.

A little subsoil turned to the surface occasionally allows the elements to act upon it freely, thus liberating food as it mingles with the surface soil and vegetable matter. In this way more valuable plant food and greater depth of soil is furnished the plants which grow upon it.

For deep, rich soil, deep ploughing, say from six to nine inches, is best in the fall of the year. The depth should be increased by one-half inch each succeeding year until the required depth is reached.

Then return to the normal by gradually diminishing the depth, from year to year. Light working soils, those running into sandy loam and sand, it is safer to plough shallow. For thin, clay soils, and equally light subsoil, plough from five to seven inches; for small grains it is, perhaps, better than very deep ploughing, because it does not turn the compact clay to the surface and it loosens the soil to a good depth. Of course, where crop roots are numerous to be raised, it is probable to occasionally subsoil and plow deeper. Some farmers practice ploughing a little deeper each year for several years in succession and then for one season plow at about half the depth of the deepest in a series of years.

Canada's Meat Exports

Packing Houses Should be Established to Meet Competition.

That the exports of meat to Great Britain have not kept pace with the opening up of new territories and the increase of livestock in the Dominion is a fact well borne out by statistics of the past fifty years. Previous to 1870 considerable numbers of our cattle were shipped to the United States and this continued till the tariff laws made the business almost impossible. But while shipments to the south were restricted, the export trade to Great Britain steadily gained so that in 1906 which was high water mark, 163,994 live cattle valued at $1,045,000 were sent to British ports. From that time to the present there has been a marked decline, the figures for 1912 being 47,868, and for 1914 only 9,778. During the war the exports were almost nil, the year 1916 being the only one in which business was done and that to the extent of only 1752 head.

Lack of shipping facilities was the main reason, but even if peace conditions prevailed it is not likely that much exporting would have been done. The keenest demand at present is from the United States, a total of 415,956 animals going there in the year ending March 31st, 1920. What the future holds in store is very much a matter of speculation as political changes in the United States may operate to shut out Canadian cattle once more. It seems certain that the best insurance against unfavorable turns in the trade is the establishment of great meat packing houses to compete with the Argentine and Australian packers on the world's markets.

Lack of shipping facilities was the main reason, but even if peace conditions prevailed it is not likely that much exporting would have been done. The keenest demand at present is from the United States, a total of 415,956 animals going there in the year ending March 31st, 1920. What the future holds in store is very much a matter of speculation as political changes in the United States may operate to shut out Canadian cattle once more. It seems certain that the best insurance against unfavorable turns in the trade is the establishment of great meat packing houses to compete with the Argentine and Australian packers on the world's markets.

The Calgary Albertan of the 23rd October declares that "liquor confiscated from bootleggers in one part of the country is purchased by bootleggers in other parts of the country, to be sold for bootlegging purposes. If confiscated again it is purchased by bootleggers in some other parts of the country, and that is the way it goes. And that is the way it will continue to go as long as we have interprovincial trade in liquor."

Blairmore, Alta., Thurs., Oct. 23, 1920

The action brought some time ago by The Blainville Lumber Company of Canada on behalf of the Majesty the King against Arthur G. Puchner and the McLaren Lumber Company of Blairmore for damages for timber destroyed on Crown lands following on the disastrous fire which burned over a considerable area of the McLaren Lumber Company's limits as well as Crown lands in July, 1917, and also claiming compensation for expenses incurred in fighting the fire, which was expected to be tried at the special sitting of the Exchequer Court of Canada held in Calgary a few days ago before the Honorable Mr. Justice Anetie, has been amicably settled out of Court between the parties. The Plaintiff on the recommendation of the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior, being the Department most interested in the enforcement of this claim, has accepted a lump sum in full settlement of the claim for damages and expenses, being, however, a sum considerably less than the actual amount for and the Defendants have also paid the Plaintiff's taxable costs. Had the action proceeded on its way through the Courts, it is quite likely that the litigation would have been prolonged on account of the number of interesting points both of law and fact, which were involved, but the settlement arrived at as above now dispenses with the matter without further litigation or delay.

Mr. Loring H. Putnam, of Blairmore, issued the information on behalf of the Attorney General for Canada, and Mr. J. E. Gille, of Blairmore, conducted the defence on behalf of the McLaren Lumber Company.

Your Value

From your neck down is a distance of about five feet. That part of you is bone and muscle.

From the neck up, the limit of your worth is the sky. For you are paid not for your work, but for what you think while you work.

A lively dance, a swell meal, a tummy full of other satisfaction, and fine clothes are all pleasures—of a certain sort.

But the man who gets his thrills from the neck up—he's living.

The man who works from the neck up—he's working and can draw real money for it!

Work with your brains, brother! You've got 'em. Trot 'em out and train 'em to work for you like your hands and feet! Then your limit is the sky!

Her First Thought

A woman from the middle west spent a few weeks in Gloucester last summer and in conversation with a new acquaintance she made known the fact that it was her very first glimpse of the ocean. "It must have been quite a treat," remarked the other. "And how did the ocean impress you?"

"Well," was the reply. "When I saw the amount of water they have here it struck me that fish might be a little bit cheaper."

Quite in Order

Mrs. Anderson rushed into her husband's office wild with excitement.

"Oh, Joe," she cried, "Emma made a mistake and tried to start the fire with gasoline."

"Gasoline, eh," said Joe calmly.

"Did she get it started?"

"Get it started," cried Mrs. Anderson. "Why, it blew her out of the window."

"Oh, well," remarked the philosophic Joe, "it was her afternoon out, anyhow."—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Livestock around here looks to be in the pink of condition, quite different from a year ago. Fodder is plentiful and farmers are wearing broad smiles.

Weather being ideal, the threshing outfits have got well ahead with their work and will be pulling home soon. Crops are turning out very satisfactory and grain is being hauled to the elevators.

A. McCulloch, J.P., for Lundbreck, came down from Coleman to spend a week on the farm. Mac has been working with the International Coal Co. of Coleman and is V.G. of Coleman I.O.O.F. Lodge. On Tuesday night he visited Cowley lodge and took part in the social aftermath.

Cowley Happenings

Jack Coghill is a business visitor in the Pass at present.

George Kirkitt is a Calgary business visitor this week.

Mr. Webster, of Ontario, is visiting friends in town. He enjoyed the week.

Mr. Edwards and family, of Maycroft, have moved into the Miss Biggar house for the purpose of sending their daughter Gussie to school here.

Mr. Webster and family have moved into the house formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Hargrove.

Mrs. B. O. Morrow was the fortunate winner of the plant which was donated to the Women's Institute by Mrs. Hargrove. The plant sold for the tidy little sum of five dollars.

The Women's Institute of Lundbreck, will hold a dance in Cowley Tustian hall on Friday night.

The social evening, held here by the Oddfellows on Tuesday, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Lank was a decided success. There was a good turnout and a very enjoyable time was spent.

Since the province went "dry" there has been a great shortage of water here. Some further arrangements will have to be made to supply this commodity, which we cannot do without under present conditions.

The machine gun, which we spoke of in last week's writing, has arrived and is standing in the post office.

Rugby appears to be the principal game played at the school here now. Most of the mothers are kept busy mending the boys' clothing these days. We hope the next notion the lads take will be of a milder nature.

Ernie Hinds says that advertising pays. A few days ago he lost a barrel skid from his truck between Frank and Bellevue. He came to our office and ordered an ad inserted and the skid was returned to him forty-eight hours before the ad appeared in print.

Never advertise just to help the publisher. This is not kindness to him nor fairness to yourself. We want to see every merchant a liberal advertiser, but it must always be done with the idea of helping his own business along. When you look upon it as a charity to the publisher you are insulting him and hoodwinking yourself.

Delaney Will Be Charged With Perjury

As we go to press we are informed that a charge of perjury is being laid against Frank Delaney, against whom a charge of robbery is pending.

Gee, but it's tough! Since the plebiscite was taken on Monday last, people of Blairmore, Calgary and other little villages are obliged to take their semi-weekly baths in pure water.

In Detroit, Brooklyn, New York, and other American cities thousands have crowded churches and tabernacles to hear England's boy evangelist, Charles Forbes Taylor, 21 years old, now touring this country with his father, Rev. Charles Taylor.

The provincial sanitary inspector was in town last week and with Chief Carter made a tour of the highways and byways of the town. Several parties whose premises showed signs of neglect were given timely warning, and there are premises in town, which if not cleaned up soon will result in prosecutions and convictions under the health act.

A number of cases are being tried before the police court today for infractions of the liquor act up to time of going to press we learn that only a couple of convictions have been registered and that judgment against a couple of others is pending until Friday morning. Magistrate Barker, of Cardston, is presiding, while the several clients are represented by solicitors Gillis, Putnam and Harris.

Governments and Commissions

Canada has become a land of Commissions. There is the Railway Commission, the Civil Service Commission, the Deep Waterways Commission, Harbor Commissions, the Soldier Settlement Board, the Pensions Board, while Commissions almost without number have been appointed in recent years to inquire into this, that and the other question. In addition to the many Commissions appointed by the Dominion authorities, every Province has a number of these bodies created under Provincial statutes.

Other Commissions and Boards have been created to discharge administrative functions, oftentimes of a semi-judicial character, when Governments have been faced with problems where, for political reasons, they did not care to assume direct responsibility in administration because of the pressure they knew would be applied to prevent a strict enforcement of the law, or because of the unpopularity which must inevitably ensue from a proper adherence to the regulations laid down and through the application of strict business principles.

While not condemning Commissions as an institution in government, it is open to question whether all Governments in Canada, both Federal and Provincial, have not made mistakes in a too frequent resort to them; and thereby created a feeling of want of confidence among the masses of the people.

Be that as it may be, one thing is at least clear. If a Government transfers to a Commission important administrative duties and responsibilities which ordinarily belong to Government itself, then it is the bounden duty of that Government to support and uphold the actions of such Commission, except where it is shown that the Commission has been derelict in its duty, has exceeded its powers, or has shown marked partiality in administration.

Last summer, one by one the members of the Board of Commerce resigned from office because of disagreement with members of the Dominion cabinet, until, at last, there was no Board left in existence. Readers will recall the sensation caused by the resignation of Mr. Murdoch and the charges of interference with the Board which he made publicly in the press. The Government thereupon appointed new members to the Board.

These men recently issued a most outrageous order prohibiting the importation of sugar into Canada, ordering that all Canadian purchases of sugar must be made from Canadian refineries, and fixing the retail price of sugar at 21 cents a pound, plus freight, although there were large surplus stocks in the country and sugar was retailing as low as 10, 11 and 12 cents a pound in the United States. An outraged public forced the suspension of this order by the Government pending an investigation, but it was so palpably framed in the interests of the refiners only and against all other classes of industry using sugar and the people of Canada generally, that it should be absolutely cancelled.

The fact that in the creation of these Commissions, Governments always reserve to themselves the right of over-riding the acts and decisions of the Commissions—undoubtedly a necessary precaution under democratic institutions—only goes to show that in the final analysis Governments are responsible for the acts of such Commissions.

The newer Canada gets back to the straightforward plan of clearly defined Government responsibility in all acts of public administration, with Parliament as a free and untrammelled forum for the discussion of all public questions and grievances, and the final arbiter in all matters, the better for the Dominion.

A Long Flight

Wild Duck From New York Found In Alberta.

From New York state wild ducks drift northward to Alberta according to the inscription found on a band on the leg of a pintail shot on the outskirts of Camrose recently. The inscription bore the wording: "Released by the American Museum at New York. Will the finder, of No. 35793 please notify us." Carl Jensen, who shot the bird, is communicating with the museum authorities and is having it mounted. Roughly speaking, it would be about 2,500 miles from New York to Camrose.

Some Statements

Dress Shabbily

Lord Salisbury and Duke of Norfolk Rivals as Worst Dressed Members.

A French newspaper correspondent who was received by Lord Lloyd George during his stay in London, was surprised to see the British premier in a worn-out, crumpled blue suit of bad fit. But Lloyd George, in thus neglecting his outer man, is only perpetuating a great English tradition.

It has always been the pride of English statesmen to look shabby. Lord Salisbury and the Duke of Norfolk were rivals for the glory of being the worst-dressed member of the house of lords, and Mr. Arthur J. Balfour's recent appearance in the house of commons in a shop-walker's coat, flannel trousers, flannel shirt and brown tennis shoes, created quite a stir.

When a certain English statesman was walking with a friend in the Bavarian health resort, Kissingen, a smartly dressed gentleman bowed to him deferentially. "Who is that?" asked the friend, "he looks like a Russian prince." "Dear me, no," replied the Englishman, "that is my valet."

The eastern half of the island has sunk and the western has risen, and as a consequence the ancient quays and harbor works at Hierapetra are submerged, while at the west end of the island the Greek harbor of Phalasarna has been entirely lifted out of the water, making it possible to walk on the dry floor of the ancient sea inlet.

Teaching Birds Music

Famous Scientist Says They Can Sing Our Songs.

That birds can sing not only their own songs but ours also, has been revealed in an astonishing story told by Henschel, the famous scientist. A bird fancier with infinite patience succeeded in teaching a bullfinch to pipe "God Save the King." Moreover, a young canary learned the tune from the bullfinch. The canary became so expert that whenever the bullfinch faltered, his little pupil unflinchingly took up the refrain, though kept in another room. If the hobby of teaching birds our favorite airs were to become popular, and these trained singers were afterwards set free in their native woods we should be able to take sylvan strolls with the pleasant prospect of hearing the vesper sparrow warble "Annie Laurie," and the robin sing, "Down On the Farm."

Manitoba Butter. Enough butter to cover 265,000,000 slices of bread was produced in Manitoba this year, according to L. A. Gibson, provincial dairy commissioner. Of 8,250,000 pounds produced, 4,100,000 have been exported, he stated.

Does the Untutored Redman See Beyond the Veil?

A Remarkable Prophecy By Ki-Nis-Tin, a Powerful Indian Chief, and Its Sequel.
By O-GE-MAS-ES (Little Clerk).

(Copyrighted)

In the Prince Albert Herald of April 19th, there is an interesting paragraph in which the Red Rose Indian who foretold his death so the day, a week in advance, though apparently quite well at the time of his prediction. This reminds me of a similar incident right here in the old days which may interest some of our readers.

Ki-Nis-Tin was by far and away the leading Indian in this locality when I settled here in 1884 and a man of very strong character. He had a following of some fourteen braves amongst whom, his eight sons were notable as fine big men, skilled hunters and splendid shots, and there were all armed at that time with repeating Winchester. Ki-Nis-Tin purchased all supplies, sold all furs trapped by the band and personally transacted all their business; his trade alone had practically enriched Zavier Patoka, who was their favorite trader. At that time he was not on friendly terms with the Hudson's Bay Company, towards whom he held a grudge, as parties who had sold the Indians birthright.

On several occasions he gave me warning that I was encroaching on his hunting grounds by settling down on my old farm and warned me to leave before worse would happen. I made several attempts to get on good terms with him but it was not until the year 1887 that I was successful, and we finally became great friends. The first white man he informed me, that had been honored by his friends.

Neither he or his small band had accepted the treaty with the Government. In fact, being wealthy in stores, furs and supplies of all kinds, he looked on the $5.00 per annum (which each treaty Indian received from the Government) with contempt.

There are as many different varieties of tea as of roses—but only ONE Red Rose Tea.

Red Rose is a blend of about a dozen varieties of teas, chiefly hill-grown ASSAMS—the richest and strongest tea grown.

The skilful blending of these teas produces the delightful and distinctive Red Rose flavor.

The rich, strong ASSAM leaves in the Red Rose package are so full of tea essence that three teaspoonfuls go as far as five of ordinary tea.

Red Rose Coffee is as generously good as Red Rose Tea

Ki-Nis-Tin had many chats with me, by the camp fire, over the future of his band and what would become of them after his death. After having had pleasant and profitable trading relations with him for some years, one of the sons (Tas-to-up-e-lung) came in from their wintering camp, at that time some seventy-five miles to the northeast, with an urgent message to me to come out at once. The month was February, weather cold and lots of snow. Packing up a small trading outfit I started back with the young Indian next morning, reaching his camp about noon on the third day out. As usual I was a guest of Ki-Nis-Tin and after the customary trading had taken place he sent all his people out of the place and turning to me, said "You wondered why I sent for you. Yes, it was my reply, 'I thought perhaps you were sick, so brought along my medicine chest'."

He laughed, said he never felt better but his time was growing short. "In what way?" I asked. "Well," he replied, "when the buds come on the poplar trees, just before they take place into leaf, I will go to join my Father." Still, I did not quite understand him, so asked him again to explain his meaning, and then he told me clearly and simply that he had received warning from the spirit world and that his death would take place at the time stated, "early spring." I felt distressed as I was really fond of the old man; not that he was so very old, between sixty and sixty-five I would say, and apparently in perfect health. I endeavored to shake his belief and told him he never looked better but he simply refused to discuss the matter.

He went on to say that I was the first white man he had ever made a friend of; that he trusted me fully and had a grave charge to leave me. "Look at my children and followers, what will become of them when the head dies. On thinking deeply over the matter I have decided it is useless to 'kick against the pricks,' the day of the Red Indian is gone; it will be better for them to follow the example of other bands; take the small government pension and become reserve Indians; but for myself, Ki-Nis-Tin will never take their treaty money."

Here the old man stood up in the open, dropped his robe and stood up, light before me; only a breast-cloth covering his nakedness. A fine specimen of a savage, truly; six feet in height and handsome angular features; a number of scars on his broad breast made by arrows and bullet wounds in old-time fighting with Blackfeet on the plains.

Pagans, we call them, but the secrets of the other world, that noted scientists like Sir Oliver Lodge and Canon Doyle are now trying to explain to humanity, were no secrets to Ki-Nis-Tin, as he was conversant in touch with the world of spirits and felt no fear; rather, in fact, rejoiced that he would soon join their numbers.

Now, he went on to say, "I want you after I am gone to get the land where your graves are, and where I will be buried, for a Reservation. My reply was that a promise of this kind was not in my power, but I could, and would, try my best to get this land reserved for them. "Very well," he said, "keep your word in this and long shall be your life and prosper your days in the future. Break your word to me and evil spirits shall haunt your existence and make your life miserable." He then went on at length on other points regarding his people, finally, calling his family, we all retired for the night. The weeks went by and just at the time indicated, before the poplars burst into leaf, my children came running into the house calling, "Daddy, there are two big Indians outside and they look very miserable." On going out a glance told me that Ki-Nis-Tin's prophecy had come true for these were two of his sons; their hair dishevelled and blackened faces told the story, and sitting down quietly beside them, they gradually related the facts of their father's death and how peacefully he had passed away—literally slept with his father—in full confidence of a happy hereafter (and who can gainsay it).

This was the old man's prophecy literally fulfilled, and I thought, myself, many things are revealed unto the simple and concealed from the wise.

Ki-Nis-Tin's legacy proved a heavy one, as it took some years heavy correspondence with Ottawa; this was made more complicated by numerous letters after some space time on the proposed reserve. Finally, thanks largely to Hon. David Laird who was Indian Commissioner at the time (who like King Arthur's men was a very perfect knight, on personal visits to pull him, alas, many of our modern politicians), the reservation became a fact, but the name of Ki-Nis-Tin, when I wished commemorated, had an O added to it by some red tape clerk. Ki-Nis-Tin-Reserve came into being and my old friend Ki-Nis-Tin's bones rest in peace.

Some years ago it was again my privilege to assist one of the old man's sons, "Ne-pan-a-quanip," known to many old timers as Nip. He was rapidly going blind and evidently needed expert treatment. After a spirited fight with the authorities I received permission to take him to Winnipeg where the services of a good oculist partially saved his sight.

HEART SO BAD WAS NOT SAFE TO LEAVE HER ALONE

Miss Eva P. Yateman, Krugersdorf, Ont., writes:—"I feel that I must write and tell you of the benefit I have received from Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. About four years ago I was taken terribly bad with my heart, nerves and fainting spells, and was down in bed for several months. I doctored with two different doctors and seemed to get better, although the fainting spells would not leave me. I would take such terrible falls, wherever I was, that it was two years to leave me alone at any time. At last I decided to resort to proprietary medicines and took several different kinds, but seemed to receive but little benefit from them. One day noticing the advertisement of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I decided to try them, and before I had taken more than two boxes I found they were helping me. I have taken about ten boxes, and am almost cured of these terrible spells. I sincerely feel that your medicine has proved a blessing to me, and I advise any one troubled with their heart to try them, as I am confident they will find relief." ## Wheat Market Situation Watched by Government

Liquor Control for B.C.

Prohibition Act Was Defeated By A Decisive Majority.

Vancouver, B.C.—British Columbia voted overwhelmingly in favor of government control of the sale of liquor. The present Prohibition Act has been defeated in cities, towns and villages, the majority in favor of government control being decisive. Moderationists who supported government control of the sale of liquor have scored a great victory and the defeat of the present "dry" act is conclusive.

All the cities in the lower mainland and Vancouver Island returned large majorities in favor of the repeal of the present act, the outstanding surprise of the voting being the large wet majority recorded in this city of 10,176.

Victoria also gave a large majority for a wet law of 3,321, while New Westminster and Prince Rupert registered a vote favorable to Government control. Kamloops, Nanaimo, Esquimalt and Rossland did likewise. A record vote was polled not only in cities and towns but in rural districts as well.

It was anticipated that the women would influence the result in favor of the present regulations but the results appear to indicate that a large number of the women voters endorsed the proposed new regulation of Government control. Strenuous campaigns were waged by both the prohibitionists and the moderationists, and both sides were equally confident of the result of the balloting. The first referendum on the liquor question on which the present prohibition act was based was taken in 1916 and resulted in a small majority for the dries.

Formation of Canadian Council of Child Welfare

New Organization Will Arrange Program for Work Throughout the Dominion.

Ottawa.—The outcome of the Dominion Child Welfare conference held here was the formation of the Canadian Council of Child Welfare. The objects of the new organization as set forth by Dr. Young, of British Columbia, are to co-operate with the Child Welfare division of the Department of Health; to prepare and disseminate information on child welfare work and to recommend a program for the work throughout the Dominion.

Any nationally organized bodies interested in child welfare work are to be represented on the council. The recommendation provided for two representatives from each of these bodies, but several delegates from western provinces and from Quebec thought this would mean a preponderance of Ontario people on the council, and on a vote being taken it was decided to make the representation for each national organization one.

Dr. John A. Amyot, deputy minister of Health, explained the relationship which might exist between the voluntary organization and the Department of Health. If the council decided to put on a nation-wide child welfare work, he felt sure the department would help in every way possible.

The first resolution brought in by the resolutions committee recommended appointment of a minister of parenthood in the Dominion. The resolution pointed out that the post would be by no means a sinecure and that it was a necessary. It referred to discussions which had taken place at the conference showing the necessity of the organization's efforts in taking care of the mother as well as the child.

The final resolution, which was adopted amid applause, asked that legislation be enacted prohibiting the placing out of children either in free or boarding homes except by adoption, or except by the sanction of some responsible official of the specific organization appointed by the province to look after this work.

"Demand has been made by the United Farmers of Alberta and the Dominion Council of Agriculture and various associations of Grain Growers for the re-establishment of control over the Canadian wheat market through a board similar to that which functioned last year and for which legislative provision was made at the last session of parliament.

"The demand is made because of the drop in current wheat prices as compared with last year and with the thought that in some way or other not clearly shown a wheat board could assure a higher price.

"With the United States market open and the Canadian market under control the tendency would be to free purchasing in the American market by other countries and the consequent stopping back of the Canadian wheat movement."

Finish Long Airplane Trip.

Mineola, N.Y.—Escorted from New York to Mineola by an aerial fleet, four United States army airplanes completed a 9,000 mile round trip to Alaska which they started July 15. Captain St. Clair Street, squadron commander, announced his intention of recommending to the War Department that the route blazed by the army fliers from Mineola to Nome be made permanent.

KEEN'S OXFORD BLUE

THE woman who wants WHITE clothes uses Keen's Oxford Blue, just as her mother and grandmother and great grandmother did before her.

Times have changed and methods too. Rain water and mangles are forgotten. All kinds of patented devices and labor saving soaps have come. But wherever clothes are washed today, Keen's Oxford Blue is still the standard of excellence.

"Nothing But The Truth"

The Blairmore Kiddies certainly deserved the crowded house that greeted them in their first theatrical performance staged at the opera house tonight in the play "Nothing But The Truth," and when one remarks that the "kid" can beat the adults all hollow they are saying Nothing But The Truth. For almost three hours the audience was kept in a roar of laughter, coupled with the highest admiration of the efforts and abilities of the children of our high school. Much credit is due the kiddies and Mr. Springer, Miss Gilroy and Mr. Conway, under whose faithful tuition the event was brought to such a success. "Nothing But The Truth" is a farcical three act comedy and is built upon the simple idea of its hero speaking nothing but the absolute truth for a stated period. He bets a friend ten thousand dollars that he can do it and boldly tackles truth to win the money. For a time the task is placidly easy, but truth soon out old man trouble and things begin to happen. Situations that are absurd and complications almost knotted pile up, all credited to Truth, and the result of the wager to foster and cherish that great virtue from the lips of the man who has espoused the cause of truth to win a wager. Vander-ville was also particularly well staged.
